HEAD MASTER'S ADDRESS

Milestones

Graduation from high school may be described as a Milestone in the life of every boy and girl who attains that goal. Certainly it marks a transition from the carefree days of youth to the more serious planning of life's career. Whether high school marks the termination of formal education, as it does for many, or the preparation for greater educational adventures, it stamps the individual with a certain imprint of success.

For the young men and women who receive diplomas from our school each year, the secondary education they have enjoyed and the success they have achieved are permanently associated with the principles of Brighton High School. Each graduate is indelibly stamped with the Brighton High School insignia which will never leave him no matter where he travels, no matter where he lives.

During your high school days, you were an undergraduate. Upon graduation, you will become an alumnus or an alumna. You will join the works of men and women known as alumni or alumnae of Brighton High School; you will earn the right to call yourself a graduate of Brighton High School. That will be a privilege that will grow in importance as you advance in age. You will not be just one of the thousands who attended Brighton High School; you will be one of the successful persons who received a diploma with its standard imprinted thereon.

As you grow older you will appreciate more and more your indebtedness to your Alma Mater. Whether you attain great success and prominence, or satisfy yourself with mediocrity, she will always enjoy your success and understand your failures.

Just as in a family the good mother rejoices when one member assists another, so will your Alma Mater rejoice, if you help one another, if you stay united on matters relating to your common interests. She will appreciate your good will and cooperation wherever she needs you.

Do what you can to assist your classmates and stand firm in your allegiance to Brighton High School. If you do, life will be all the sweeter for you.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

WILLIAM BELL

As we approach graduation day, the pinnacle of our high school career, it is necessary for us to realize why we are formally recognized by our family and friends on this particular day. Does not graduation from Brighton High School mean that now we must shed many of our carefree ways and replace them with an added responsibility both to ourselves and to our community?

We shall have to decide by ourselves, to a large extent, what we shall do upon leaving the Castle on the Hill. Whether we go into the business world, join the armed forces, or further our education, we shall have to face our obligations in a maturer manner than we have had to thus far in our life. However, the education which we have received at Brighton High School has prepared us so that we should be able to deal successfully in our future environments.

On this occasion we wish to express our sincere gratitude to the unselfish efforts of the faculty of our school. Not only have our teachers taught us a certain amount of technical knowledge, but they also have instilled in us a way of life, namely, the democratic way of life. May we always preserve and uphold these principles.

To our many friends and relatives we express our appreciation. And to Mr. McInerney we convey our deepest thanks for his untiring efforts on our behalf. We also extend to you, Mr. McInerney, an honorary membership in the Class of 1959.

We, the Class of 1959, diplomas in hand, resolve to face life remembering our duty to our country and to mankind.

EDITORS' MESSAGE

Fellow Classmates:

We, the co-editors, are proud to present this yearbook to the Senior Class. In the years to come, we feel sure that you will look back with fond remembrances on your days at the "Castle on the Hill." We wish to express our most sincere appreciation to Mr. Kelliher, our yearbook sponsor; Mr. Walsh, financial adviser; and Miss Gilman, literary adviser.

Knowing you are anxious to read on, we say—may you enjoy this book as much as we have enjoyed composing it.

CLASS ORATION

Our Class Banquet has finally come when we, as seniors, are gathered together for one of the few remaining times.

When we were younger we considered graduation from Brighton High School as an end in itself, but now we are increasingly realizing that this event is only the beginning of a life filled with many new challenges. Some of us will enter the business world, others will enter various professions, while still others will be homemakers and raise the future citizens of tomorrow. By reaching our goals we shall reward our parents and teachers who never have ceased to give us their utmost support and understanding.

We, at Brighton High School, have been fortunate to attend a school where the equality of men is fully recognized. Our education has been aimed at the development of democratic ideas so that we may become useful as well as good members of society.

To Mr. McInerney, our teachers, and parents, we are indebted for the part they played in making us better citizens in an ever-changing world. As the Class of 1959, not only have we witnessed the entrance of Alaska as the forty-ninth state, but we have also seen the advent of the inter-stellar age with the launching of the Sputniks and the Explorers. These events show us that in future years we shall be able to achieve greater things because our predecessors have done their part in contributing to human society.

Though our different occupations will tend to separate us in the years to come, we shall always be linked by one common bond, the education which we received at Brighton High School.

CLASS POEM

Farewell

LOIS SOBELL

FAREWELL

I

What will you say of us, Brighton?
We're leaving.
Rooftree that sheltered from storm and sun,
Keep close and as kindly the new ones begun.
Halls that have echoed with voices that call,
Say we were happy—thy loyal ones all.
Walls of the schoolroom ever repeat
Tales of triumph; our knowledge, complete.
Teachers who guided us these years so fleet
Say we were sportsmen in gain or defeat.
Our work here is ended. Now will be known
How much we have learned, how much we have grown.
What will you say of us, Brighton?
We're leaving.

II

How shall we thank you, Brighton?
We're leaving.
Lessons we learned increasing our knowledge
To cope with life's problems at home or at college.
Skills in business and trade you bestowed on us, too,
To lighten our burdens, make our dreams come true.
Friends you have given to last through the years
To comfort and cherish—alleviate fears.
Ideals you instilled in our minds will stay
To guide us through life in work and in play.
For these we all thank you, Brighton!
We're leaving.

BARBARA MacGILLIVRAY

CLASS HISTORY

How well we remember the first time we entered "the Castle on the Hill." No longer were we to be called junior high schoolers, but full fledged high school students. We waited with anticipation, wondering whether or not our hopes and dreams would come true. At first we were a bit afraid of our new school. Seniors and juniors seemed to scorn us, and always insisted that there were a student elevator and swimming pool.

Mr. Henry McInerney, our new Head Master, welcomed us. It was also his first year at Brighton, a fact which built up our confidence. When we heard that Mr. Hayes, Miss Fitzgerald and Mr. Introini were also beginning their first year here, our spirit was further increased.

As time went by, and the football season came to an end, our team, under the direction of Mr. McCabe, surpassed itself by tying for the District League Championship.

We were honored that year, by having as a guest speaker at one of our assemblies, Harold Connolly, a former Brighton student and Olympic champion.

During December, we became acquainted with the annual Christmas pageant with its simplicity and beauty deeply touching our hearts.

We were thrilled with excitement when Brighton won not only the first prize for its excellence in the School Boy Parade, but also won prizes for the Band and the Drum Corps.

After the long summer vacation, we as juniors approached the castle more sure of ourselves than we had been the year before. Grieved we were to hear that Miss Bailey, Mrs. Brennick, Miss McKissock and Mr. Lewis had left us. We hoped that they would find peace and happiness in their new surroundings. However, warm greetings were in order for Miss Chapin, Mrs. DesAutels, Miss O'Leary, Mr. Gordon, Mr. Gallagher, Mr. Casey and Mr. Rontuccio upon their arrival at Brighton. Mr. Najarian joined us in January as a replacement for Mr. Fickett.

Great honor was accorded us when William Bell was chosen to represent a typical high school junior throughout the country.

Moving pictures were taken of him in his classes by the United States Department of Education. How happy we were to think that we might be in that film which was televised on December twenty-second.

Thankful we were to the Chamber of Commerce for inviting our teachers to participate in Business Education Day! Of course, we spent the whole day off boning up on our subjects.

As spring rolled around, great honor came to our magazine and its editors and advisor. Brighton Towers, which had been entered in the Columbia Press Contest for the best high school magazine and had also been entered in the Boston Globe competition, won first prize for the best all-round magazine.

Towards the end of the school year, the cheerleaders for the 1958-59 season were elected: Judy Corbett, Captain, Marie Rich, Co-Captain, Judy Brack, Gail Charbonnier, Gerry Oliver, Sonja Ahlin, Nancy Brown, Ann Louise Salvucci, Peggy MacPhail, Rachel Abate and Nancy Imbergamo.

In our last assembly, the names of the captains of Brighton's teams were announced: Track captain, Peter Burkhart; Basketball captain, Richard Underwood; Baseball co-captains, Mike Ryan and Edward Brack; Football co-captains Joe Pesaturo and John Keane; Tennis captain, Alfred Amirault.

Robert Jule won our congratulations for winning the Silver Medal in the 1958 Annual Competition of Manual Arms. Pamela Howarth brought added glory to our class by receiving Honorable Mention in the Clean-Up, Paint-Up Poster Contest.

Before we knew it, vacation was upon us; and with eager anticipation we looked foreward to our glorious senior year.

All too suddenly our vacation ended and we were back at school! Here at last was the day we had longed for—We were Seniors. We were sorry to hear that Mr. Murphy, who had been a teacher and an athletic coach in our school for many years, had retired, as had Miss Johnson, our teacher of Health Education. Among the new faces on the faculty were Miss Rustino, Miss Winterbottom, Mr. Doherty and Mr. Berrenati. Marie Cugini, Anita Morrison, Judy Pickett, and Elinor Zimmerman headed our Gothic staff, while Anita Morrison became Editor-in-Chief of Brighton Towers.

With the organization of the various clubs, we found the following pupils elected as presidents: Reading Club, Loretta Cedrone; Biology Club, Carolyn Avellar; French Club, Nancy Brown; and Spanish Club, Shirley Stein. During the year, Al Paolini was chosen as Student Council president.

Cynthia Korn, Pamela Howarth, and Rachelle Bourque earned medals for their beautiful pictures which had been sent to New York in the Boston Globe Scholastic Art Awards Competition.

Great excitement reigned during January. Campaign promises flowed thick and fast; posters on bulletin boards urged us to vote for our favorite candidates for class officers. After the smoke of battle had cleared away, the following class members were elected: William Bell, President; Bruce Kilroy, Vice-President; Mary Hennessey, Secretary; Herbert Davis, Treasurer; Barbara MacGillivray, Historian; Judy Pickett, Orator; Executive Committee, Lesley Anderson, Celia Butera and Carol Contestable.

To ensure a most impressive Class Day, Marshals Robert Jule, Nancy Brown, Judy Brack, Geraldine McNeil and Marie Cugini were chosen. Greatly pleased were we with our class motto—"Good faith is the foundation of justice"—and we vowed that we would always try to live up to its significance.

Our track team won for itself great praise when it won the Novice Division Champion Track Meet. Congratulations are in order for Captain Burkhart and his whole team.

And now, all too soon, our wonderful year is drawing to a close. Despite the gayety and mirth of Class Day and the Prom, we feel a tinge of sadness as we realize that with graduation, our high school days will be gone. Whatever the future may bring, we will always recall with joy and deep appreciation the days when we were the Class of Fifty-nine.

CLASS PROPHECY

It was 10:30 Friday night when I boarded the plane at Logan for my first plane ride. I hadn't been able to sleep in the afternoon because of excitement, and at 10:30 I was exhausted. Trying to see everything at the same time was no help at all, and by the time the plane was off the ground I could hardly keep my eyes open.

The stars seemed a lot closer way up here. Stars! Are they stars that are going by? No, they're not at all. They are the years 1965, 1970, 1975, 1980. Quickly I reached out and grabbed hold of 1980. Before I knew it, it was a clear, warm morning in 1980. Where was I though? Everything looked so strange! This couldn't be Logan! Impossible! The planes were so different! But I was at Logan, and there was a crowd of people standing at gate 14. I tapped a man on the shoulder to ask him what was going on, and to my surprise it was Howard Densmore, the millionaire, waiting to see the President of the United States, Richard Brown, accompanied by the United States Senator, Bryna Pearlman, on a campaign tour for his second term. Also at the airport I met Peter Lessard, a celebrity. He had just returned from the moon. First man there, mind you! Arthur Wyman was examining the rocket in which Edward Pray was to explore space, and giving it a last minute check-up.

Audrey Brodsky, Judy Dinerman, Judy Brack, Margie Anglin, Nancy Jacobson and John Cullen were having their luggage checked at customs when I got there. They had just returned from a tour of Europe. With them was John Sullivan who had just swum the English Channel in the record-breaking time of eleven hours. How did you do it, John? Then I saw Doris Gill, who is a world trade secretary, pass by.

As I toured the rest of the airport, I met some people who work there: Barbara Shapiro, an interpreter; Louis Tagliani and Arthur Kobey, air-plane mechanics; five of the nicest stewardesses, Jean Ford, Ann Dower, Chris Knight, Gloria Trombly, and Geraldine McNeil; also Ann Salvucci, and Lois Penny, just wandering around looking for interesting people.

I was still fascinated by all the people I saw that resembled my classmates at Brighton High School some twenty-one years ago; I wasn't the least bit surprised to see George Masabny, Fred White, Edward Kotomori, Beatrice Gillespie, and Michael Ryan still trying to be successful. Walking with them were Vito Liuzza, hoping for the best; Loretta Cedrone, trying "to be"; Sandra Dennison, still looking for a career; and John Lulasky, trying to make a future and earn some money.

Just boarding the plane for the West coast were James Doerner, who intends to remain out West; Pat Flaherty, on her way to (77 Sunset Strip); Mary Fuller on her way to Japan; and Billy Quinn, new owner of the Milwaukee Braves.

I figured that it was about time I left the air-port so I climbed aboard an aerial tramway. Turning on the Television set I saw the end of a fashion show. My heavens! It was Lynda Cohen, Judy Garland, and Maureen Gregis wearing the latest styles, which make sack dresses look like ordinary bags! Next came an interview with a Broadway star, Joanne Bradbury. "What's the name of your latest play, Joanne?" "An Evening With Joanne Bradbury." My, what a catchy title!

This was too much, so I decided I would take a ride around Boston and see the old city once again. Flying in my aerial tramway, I saw to my surprise, a new building in Copley Square. I asked my driver if he would let me down and come back for me in an hour or so.

Walking through the entrance, I saw a sign that read "Prudential Building." This couldn't be the building they were talking about some twenty years ago, or could it? Edward Brack and Edward Ryder were walking around the building, for they were the proud engineers who had designed it.

I was just in time for lunch and I walked into one of the many restaurants. I saw some very familiar faces: Dorothy McGee, Ann Stewart, Dorothy Walsh, Kathy Costa, Candy Pierre, Janice Moschella, Frances Corse, Sandra Kurzman, Patricia Warnock, Marguerite Parker, and Mary Chiacchieri, very successful secretaries working for very intellegent men, one being, William Boudette, who had graduated from Northeastern University. Also in the restaurant I met Mary Lou Blaney who finally got an "A" in a bookkeeping test, and is now working for David Metivier, who is a Certified Public Accountant. Gail DeAngelis, who was with them had just got passing grades in secretarial school.

I was too excited to sit down and wait for a meal, so I went a little farther until came to a Pizza Palace. Whom did I see through the window but Gerard Cocuzzo, busily making pizzas. Standing at the counter were Herbert Davis and Jimmy Keough, taking a break there, still looking for their rich wives. What happened boys? With them were Louis Lombardi, living the Life of Reilly; Jimmy DeLuca who had just returned from the Unemployment Bureau; and Fred Weinberg, who had just made his one millionth hula-hoop.

As I proceeded down the hall, I overheard Richard Underwood, proud owner of the new Underwood Club in Boston, which is similar to his social jazz club in Greenwich Village. Charlie Vassil and Charlie Wilson hope to have interesting jobs there.

I decided to see whether anything else interesting was going on in the building and to my surprise the second meeting of the mothers' club was just being called to order. Joan Ford, with twelve children was the president, and Olga Mavrelles with twelve also was vice-president. Judy Corbett, Dianne Currie, Judy McCarthy, Josephine Subilosky and Elinor Munsell were all members. Of course, the last names were changed on everyone, but to me they were my old classmates.

In one of the other meeting rooms there was a conference of teachers. I entered quietly, and there around the table were: Enid England, Helen Wachenheim, Arline Weisman, Lynda Rubin, Carole Walsh, and Madeline Hanessian, a few of the teachers who had gone back to Brighton High School to distribute their knowledge. With them was Jane Watkins, who had gained a great deal of knowledge and was seeing whether there was anything that she had missed. Thomas Smith, the great orator, was taking notes.

Walking along the corridor, I noticed some very interesting pictures painted by some old acquaintances, Kathleen Courtney and Cynthia Korn.

After leaving the building, I decided to look around before my aerial tramway came. I jumped aside just in time to avoid getting hit by Arthur Hellender, the proud owner of a 1981 Thunderbird. With him was Edward Pucillo, a State Trooper, coming home for the week-end. Just ahead was a sign: Peter Kane, Joseph Tocci, and Paul Webber, owners of a very successful service station. Working there as auto mechanics were: Vincent LoChirco, Robert Touchette, and John Flaherty, ignition specialists, and Robert Gober, David Budgell, and Joe Poirier, automotive engineers.

By this time my aerial tramway had come and I wanted to visit one of the many famous hospitals in Boston. Upon arriving at the nearest one, I saw Thomas Whiteside, Richard Thompson, and Ernest Fino, just leaving. They were in uniform, and had just received their medical discharge.

As I walked down the long corridor of the hospital, Carolyn Avellar, Maxine Davis, Claire Imbriano, Barbara Levine, June Katzenberger, Carolyn Preece, and Lois Sobell were a few of the very efficient nurses I passed. No hospital is complete without a few medical secretaries, such as Toby Cohen, Sybil Kaplan and Irene Swartz.

I decided to see how things were getting along in the laboratory so I took the elevator down. I looked in the mirror and to my surprise I saw a gray-haired lady. I was flabbergasted to see it was I, Jeanne Boucher.

I walked into the laboratory and Sonja Ahlin, Linda Sadow, and Maxine Wyman, X-ray technicians, were busily mixing and developing a solution, with Robert Richman, a biochemist. There was a terrific explosion and before I realized, the stewardess was shaking me and saying, "Fasten your safety belts. Fasten your safety belts!"

"Take an Older Sister's Advice..."

"IT'S SMART to line up job interviews well in advance of graduation. And one of the best places I know to contact is the Telephone Company. Several of us from my graduating class are working here — and every one of us loves it."

Telephone jobs are important ones. We have our own training program which you can enter without any previous job experience. The pay is good, and you'll get regular raises.

Why not come and see our employment interviewer soon . . . before you graduate. Ask the Guidance Counselor at your school to tell you when and where to apply.
